

SOMETHING WORSE THAN OUTRAGE

Worse than empty outrage is the beaming of gratitude onto the unacceptable.

Why celebrate the status quo?

Be relentless with yourself and others.

Gentleness towards the given circumstances is no virtue if it is a privilege.

The reality is that, right (or left) side of the issues or not, your thoughts and righteous ideals are mostly governed by the influence of the interest lobbies that back them.

That means the ideas with the most money are the ones that are probably going to steer most of your thinking.

It doesn't mean these ideas are wrong, it just means you need to take in other variables before jumping to conclusions. Having your mind made up is probably a more dangerous sign than you think.

Just because everyone says it, and it seems bad to not say it, doesn't mean it's true.

It's harder than ever to call it as you see it and say to hell with it all.
